

We need you: we are looking for people to join our local academy board at Dixons Marchbank

Would you like to be deeply involved in your community, listening to what everyone has to say, and tackling the challenges we face together?

We're looking for people like you to join our local academy board which will replace the traditional school governor position.

We need parents, teachers, and other community members to join us. Our academy isn't separate from the community: it's a crucial part of it. Besides educating our young people, it helps make our community a better place.

Understanding our community is key. We need to know what families, students, and others are going through: their worries, their problems, what they hope and dream for, and what they need.

If you want to be part of our local academy board ambassador, talk to the principal, Rebecca Greenwood or contact the school office for more information. Board ambassadors meet four times a year.

Here's what you'll do:

- Work with other members to plan the academy's future.
- Speak up for students, parents, and teachers to make sure everyone feels supported.
- Be part of shaping policies and programmes to help students who might be struggling.
- Keep an eye on how well we're doing in academics and connecting with the community.

We're looking for people who:

- Care about helping students and their local community.
- Want to support students in reaching their goals.
- Are good at working with others and talking things through.
- Can give time and skills to help our academy and the community.
