Nursery News

Welcome back!

We hope you have had a lovely Summer holiday.

This half terms theme is 'Colours'.

In English we will be reading the story 'Colours'. This story will support their understanding of colour recognition by helping them identify and name a variety of colours in everyday situations. The gentle, relatable illustrations introduce colours through familiar items such as clothing, food, and nature, making it easier for young children to make connections to their own lives.

The story also helps to build descriptive vocabulary. Children are exposed to rich language such as "bright red coat" or "blue sky," which encourages them to describe what they see and talk about their own experiences. As they discuss the book, children practise important communication skills, including listening, responding, and sharing their thoughts with others.

Colours also supports children's observation skills and encourages them to become more aware of the colours around them in their environment. This links closely with the area of Understanding the World, as children begin to notice and talk about the natural and man-made world in more detail.

In addition, the book promotes personal, social and emotional development by offering calm, familiar scenarios. These help children feel secure and valued, and provide opportunities for expressing their preferences and feelings—for example, by sharing their favourite colours or talking about familiar routines.
